Of all the car accidents in the U.S. each year involve multi-vehicle collisions.

Getting justice for the victims in multi-car crashes is particularly challenging. There are several things you can do to help protect your rights after a multi-vehicle collision.

What to do at the scene of an accident.

Contact the police and make a report of the incident.

Take photos of the scene, including vehicle damage and debris, original position of vehicles, injuries, skid marks, and traffic lights and signs.

Witnesses can assist in the investigation. Be sure to collect their contact information.

If you are injured, contact a qualified personal injury attorney as soon as possible to help preserve and record all of the evidence.

Who's at Fault?

Determining who is at fault is usually the biggest issue in chain reaction crashes.
